

Sam Jin

Sam has two kids who enjoy studying and learning at FFCA. Sam got his MBA degree from Schulich School of Business at York University. He has held various management and marketing positions and is currently a business owner of two Subway Restaurants and one convenience store, which enables him to think strategically and handle issues practically. He has trained many staff members and inspired them to aim higher and achieve higher.

Sam believes in continuous learning and thinking outside the box. Education is the key to helping kids open their minds and succeed in their lives. Sam is open-minded and often puts himself in other people's shoes to gain their perspective when communicating with society members and other directors. His immigrant background helps him understand immigrant families' culture and needs when providing suggestions and making decisions with the Board.

“Character determines destiny.”
